
OLD TERRE HAUTE

The above plat of the original town of Terre Haute was filed for record October 25. 1816 at Vincennes, Knox County. The original entry of the land was made by Joseph Kitchell, September 13 14, 1816, at the United States land office in Vincennes. Joseph Kitchell later sold his interest to Cuthbert and Thomas Builett, Jonathan Lindley, Hyacinth LaSalle and Abram Markle. These men organized the Terre Haute Company. The present location of the town as the County seat was made March 21, 1818. The original plat from which this was drawn is now in the possession of the William Markle family, at the old Markle Homestead.

TERRE HAUTE

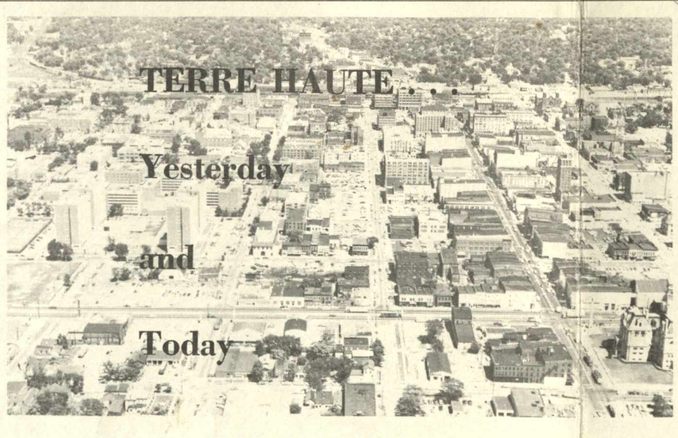
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

. . . Welcomes You

631 Cherry Street

TERRE HAUTE, INDIANA 47808



Terre Haute, a community of many facets.

Terre Haute—definitely a city, and your new home.

Briefly then, you will want to know some of the background, some of the facts about your new city of residence. In 1966, the community celebrated its Sesquicentennial . . . 150 years of varied, frequently exciting, history. Actually, not too different from your town.

There are a few factors which changed the city's history, which have had a definite influence on what we are today, why the citizens think as they do, and what will govern the future. First, Terre Haute was a river town. There was barge traffic. Pork packing and barrel-making were important activities as these items were shipped down river to New Orleans on timber rafts. Later the discovery of coal and the advent of the railroad, changed the local economy.

From mid-19th century to the 1930's, coal and railroading were dominate. In the late 1920's, both activities started a decline which continued to World War II. And this decline adversely affected the city, as unemployment rose and there were no new jobs to absorb the available men.

World War II restored coal and railroading to a marked degree, but the impact of the depression was very definite. During the war two defense operations were established here, a third within 20 miles. All eventually were closed.

It was evident that educational facilities would have to be expanded and jobs provided to meet the ever-growing population.

New industry, new commercial firms and expansion of existing industry was needed.

In the '60's new plants began to arrive and existing industry expanded. Industrial employment started a climb which is still continuing. After more than 50 years as the commercial center of the Wabash Valley, large retail firms recognized the potential of the city and large stores were constructed in existing or self-owned shopping centers.

New highways, the city's outstanding airport, excellent water supply, truck and rail facilities, electric power, gas, schools, residential areas, churches all contributed to the growth of Terre Haute.

Supplementing the basic assets of Terre Haute are such items as a symphony orchestra, an art gallery, a museum of antique and classic autos, some nineteen parks, including two golf courses, a historical museum, the home of Gene Debs, bowling alleys, fishing spots, swimming, boating.

You are new in town and facing a new experience. About the best help in this situation is a friend. We know the people here are friendly, that a newcomer is most welcome. This is your "home", and the people here will help . . . Just put out a hand, someone will take it to welcome, to help and to become a friend.

Terre Haute, a community of many facets.

Terre Haute—definitely a city, and your new home.

Briefly then, you will want to know some of the background, some of the facts about your new city of residence. In 1966, the community celebrated its Sesquicentennial . . . 150 years of varied, frequently exciting, history. Actually, not too different from your town.

There are a few factors which changed the city's history, which have had a definite influence on what we are today, why the citizens think as they do, and what will govern the future. First, Terre Haute was a river town. There was barge traffic. Pork packing and barrel-making were important activities as these items were shipped down river to New Orleans on timber rafts. Later the discovery of coal and the advent of the railroad, changed the local economy.

From mid-19th century to the 1930's, coal and railroading were dominate. In the late 1920's, both activities started a decline which continued to World War II. And this decline adversely affected the city, as unemployment rose and there were no new jobs to absorb the available men.

World War II restored coal and railroading to a marked degree, but the impact of the depression was very definite. During the war two defense operations were established here, a third within 20 miles. All eventually were closed.

It was evident that educational facilities would have to be expanded and jobs provided to meet the ever-growing population.

New industry, new commercial firms and expansion of existing industry was needed.

In the '60's new plants began to arrive and existing industry expanded. Industrial employment started a climb which is still continuing. After more than 50 years as the commercial center of the Wabash Valley, large retail firms recognized the potential of the city and large stores were constructed in existing or self-owned shopping centers.

New highways, the city's outstanding airport, excellent water supply, truck and rail facilities, electric power, gas, schools, residential areas, churches all contributed to the growth of Terre Haute.

Supplementing the basic assets of Terre Haute are such items as a symphony orchestra, an art gallery, a museum of antique and classic autos, some nineteen parks, including two golf courses, a historical museum, the home of Gene Debs, bowling alleys, fishing spots, swimming, boating.

You are new in town and facing a new experience. About the best help in this situation is a friend. We know the people here are friendly, that a newcomer is most welcome. This is your "home", and the people here will help . . . Just put out a hand, someone will take it to welcome, to help and to become a friend.
